[For the Dispatch.] Mozis Addums Rezooms Bizniss. The gaim ar over and the dog ar ded. I has tuk off the cok uv my hr ss-pistle uv tejoysin and berrid her. Tidden aint agoin to be Prezident. He can't git to be Prezident 'thout fitin, and it. ar too late to fite new. The fitin men fit their fite years ago.

Taint no use uv talkin, that aint goin to be no war. So I wants to rezoom bizniss. My bizniss is the lightin-long bizniss. I ketched um and drie um, and sprinkile um with gummy-rable and brown sugar, and sell um for French candy. And I does a good bizniss with skule childern and cuilerd folks. Libberty is dibberty, and bizniss is dent 'thout fitin, and it. ar too late to fite folks. Libberty is libberty, and bizuiss is bizness. Libberty have took down her sine and I has heisted mine. Frum and after this date I rezooms, and I want it to be knode that I am anxhus to trade. But I does bizniss on a strickly kash baseness.

A Modern Elijah.

[Chicago Tribune.] There's a woman in this city who for many years has been fed by the hand of God as much as Elijah of old to whom the ravens came in the wilderness. Her name is Mrs. Pithey, and she lives at No. 68 Williams Her life has been one of extraorenary suffering, of patient endurance, and of perfect Christian faith. A long time ago she was as bright and pretty a young woman as one could meet, and when she married John Pithey the church-bells rang merrily, and a joyous group of friends pressed around the young couple to extend their hearty congratulations. That was in the time when the grandmothers of the present generation had not lost the bloom from their cheeks nor the light from their eyes, and it was a long time ago.

Every one who has reached the prime of life knows how difficult it is to keep track of the hurrying years. It is only the greater events that are firmly dated in the mind. they were happy, Mrs. Pithey was stricken with that ancient and dreaded disease, the palsy, which from that day to this has never active and strong: state nonds—Tenness series teady.

Beening.—Money dull and firm. Sterling dull at 482. Gold stronger at 107% 107%. Governments active and strong; new 5's 11%. States quiet. After a married life of ten years, as brief as released her from its spectral grasp. Helpless as a child, having to be fed and lifted about her room, she has never yet been heard to utter a complaint, her admonition to all who take her trembling hand being, "Trust in the Lord."

In the year 1868 the husband of this poor woman died suddenly of apoplexy, leaving her a little cottage on Williams street, and only fifty cents in money to provide for herself and her blind mother, nearly ninety years of age and bedridden. Since then she has subsisted on faith. A few kindhearted people have looked after her from time to time, and lately she has been specially cared for by the Centenary church. She never manifests any anxiety about the future, for she says, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," and He will not let any of His children suffer. Summer and winter come and pass and day follows in the train of night, and all is the same. The blue sky may look down ever so softly, and the sunlight may dance upon the green fields and the crowded streets. Sometimes the voices of children playing upon the sidewalk penetrate the silence of the sick room, and sometimes there comes the distant rumble of passing vehicles, and these are her reminders of the outer world—a world which is to her little more than a memory. She lived in it once and and felt its changing joys and griefs, its hopes brightening with the dawn of youth heard the gentle tones of loved ones who follows in the train of night, and all is the heard the gentle tones of loved ones who have long since passed away, saw the garhave long since passed away, saw the garments of earth freshen and fade with the passage of the years-but that was a long time ago. She is sitting in an old armchair, weak and powerless of limb, the shadows of age clustering gradually over her wrinkled face, and to each friend who touches her trembling hand she whispers smilingly, "Trust in the Lord!"

The present cold spell has solidified and strengthened the gorge in the river at St. Louis, and there appears to be no immediate danger of further damage to the icelocked fleet of steamers, or until more moderate weather shall cause the ice to run out. Gangs of men are busily engaged in repairing and getting them ready to move when the gorge breaks. The total loss so far is about $150,000.

UNCERTAIN BUSINESS PROSPECTS .- "Wot are yer going ter do next summer, Jim?" said one newsboy to another on the street this morning.

The gentleman addressed-a personage about three feet high, with a champion smutty face, and coat and trowers several times too large for him-assumed a solid air and replied with suavity: "That depends on the purceeds uv my perfeshun, cully. Ef this lection biz hangs on a while longer and then a Yurrupean war busts out, so's papers'll sell big all winter an' make the scads tumble in as I anticipate, I'm goin' to retire on a competency and buy a huntin' dorg. Them's the pospects. cully. "-St. Louis Republican. The Fat Contributor also wants reform. Says he: "Time has been when we jeered at the effete despotism of the old world for maintaining a king. We were told how much it cost to support the royal family and keep them in castles and such luxuries, and we wondered that the people stood it. We could hire a President for twenty-five thousand dollars a year in those days, the President boarding himself, and twenty-five thousand dollars would hardly pay a king's hack-hire. But we have been gradually waking up to the fact that a President isn't so cheap a luxury after all. He has been costing more and more money every time. The last election has been an expense to the American people of millions of dollars, and we haven't got so far as to know who the next President is to be yet. At this rate of expense what will our President cost us by the time another four years roll around?"

There are several old women in Michigan who dreamed that this election would result in a war, and all prudent men are calling themselves "General."-Detroit Free
